This is the slogan of the Dandelion Insurrection, author/activist Rivera Sun's fictional tale of non-violent revolution. Set in a U.S. that has become a dictatorship controlled by the rich and corporations (not an entirely unrealistic extrapolation from today's America), a handful of activists led by young Zadie Byrd Gray and Charlie Rider use imaginative means to fight back and bring about a better world.

The Dandelion Insurrection: Love and Revolution by Rivera Sun

Under a gathering storm of tyranny, Zadie Byrd Gray whirls into the life of Charlie Rider and asks him to become the voice of the Dandelion Insurrection. With the rallying cry of life, liberty, and love, Zadie and Charlie fly across America leaving a wake of revolution in their path. Passion erupts. Danger abounds.

Community is the most effective weapon we have against oppression. If there is no bond, no love and cooperation, then states of fear are more easily maintained. People coming together and working in unity is surely the biggest threat to any system of power and control. This is the message of The Dandelion Insurrection.

Rivera Sun, The Dandelion Insurrection - Love and ...

The Dandelion Insurrection is a novel about two young people in love in turbulent times, but it is also the story of a nation learning to love again. To love their neighbor as themselves. To love the divine creation that is the earth we inhabit. To love the vision of a truly just and egalitarian nation into being.
